

Call for lecturers: 33rd VH yeast conference April 27-28, 2020
“yeast production challenges”
at Hotel Berlin, Berlin, Germany

Rising customer market demands on sustainable products and climate friendly production evoke new challenges to Feed/Food industry, even to well adjusted yeast productions.

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen,

You are an expert and re-consider solutions for supply chains, bio-refinery or else production & process aspects?

We kindly invite you to present at the 33rd VH Yeast Conference, with the focus on “yeast production challenges.” The VH Yeast Conference is the peer-group meeting of yeast technologists and gathers about 80 people from industry, suppliers and academia.

Our audience is eager to learn about and discuss with you.

You are invited to give a lecture to present a poster on the topic suggested, with a specific focus of your choice, and furthermore give a short presentation of your institution.

Your contributions could cover one of the following topics:

- raw material supply (up-cycling of side streams → zero waste)
- Yeast strain diversity and selection for special protein applications
- climate friendly production → zero Carbon

General topics of the 33rd VHYC April 27-28, 2020:

- Markets developments
- Applied research topics & project notes
- Advances in yeast production & process units
- Quality requirements and analytical solutions

We would appreciate to receive your topic and title within the next two week, by December 24, 2019. Your lecture can take 25' + 5' for questions from the audience.

If you are not available on the conference date, please forward our request (and lead) to your colleagues. If any young scientists would like to present a poster (5' short lecture) on their current work, please encourage them to contact us.

Conference fees:

You as a lecturer are invited on both conference days free of charge, as well as for accommodation and the convivial evening program. Co-authors may participate at reduced fees of 290 €. Travel costs get reimbursed.

If any questions remain, please contact us via e-mail or phone.
Thank you in advance!
